① Westbourne Studios 6pm

Undertow Neil Mcenery-West 27mins 12A
Undertow explores two journeys. The first is a perpetual nightmare set in a deserted city. A heightened and increasingly fragmented visual/sound environment serves to create a physical world reflecting the protagonists disturbed psychological landscape. In the same city, only now populated and overcrowded, a woman grieving begins to find the world around her increasingly claustrophobic and unbearable. Ordinary places and sounds take on an ominous and foreboding presence.

As these two worlds collide, the lines between what is real and what is not, what is remembered and what is only imagined, become impossibly blurred.

Undertow is a film about perception, and how the way you view the things around you is merely a reflection of your own inner state. Drama, London

THU 28 AUG - WESTBOURNE STUDIOS

Babylon

(Franco Rossi) 100mins 15

7:30pm

Mechanic and part-time sound system 'toaster' Blue (Brinsley Forde) and his Ital Lion crew are looking forward to a sound clash competition with rival outfit Jah Shaka. But as the event approaches, Blue's personal life begins to unravel. Fired from his job by his racist boss (Mel Smith), he begins to suspect his girlfriend is cheating on him. A further series of unpleasant racist incidents - including Blue being chased, brutally beaten and arrested by a group of plain-clothes policemen - culminates in Ital Lion's lock-up garage being broken into and their sound equipment being destroyed. Increasingly angered and alienated by what he perceives to be society's rejection of his race and his culture, Blue is compelled to respond by fighting fire with fire.

Directed by Franco Rosso (Dread Beat an' Blood), co-written (with Rosso) by Martin Stellman (Quadrophenia), and photographed by two-time Oscar® winner Chris Menges (The Mission; The Killing Fields), Babylon is a raw and incendiary film-making at its best.

The Town That Boars Me

(Ben Charles Edwards) 10mins 15

9:10pm

The latest 15 minute indie film written and directed by rising star Ben Charles Edwards and produced by Glass Loves and Shoot To Kill. A modern musical, shot in B-movie style, it features a cast that includes a host of famous names, including Kelly Osbourne, Sophie Ellis-Bextor, Sadie Frost, Natt Weller, Zandra Rhodes, Andrew Logan, Dee C Lee and Jodie Harsh.

The Town That Boars Me tells the tale of a Pig Boy created by the lonely town butcher (Andrew Logan). The Pig Boy, now banished from the town, returns at nightfall to torment the local women and satisfy his insatiable fetish for high heel shoes. Starring Sophie Ellis-Bextor, Sadie Frost, Jodie Harsh, Zandra Rhodes, Dee C Lee, Natt Weller and Kelly Osbourne as the sadistic beauty pageant judge who will go to any length to keep her precious heels safe!

INTERNATIONAL FILMS:

Beyond the Fence

Ryuichi Honda 100mins 15
The script has been written by the actor Tomohisa Yuge. This is his first original script which he has been planning for a long time. The script being highly appraised for its quality, was instantly decided by the producers to be made into film. The director of the film is Ryuichi Honda whom also directed the non-sensed surreal entertainment films "Operation Pussycat" and "My Wife's shell". The director with his own unique world, had completely changed his style. With this film, Ryuichi Honda took the script and expressed Yuge's world with his sure direction. Drama, Japan

2:40

The Fifth Mind

Naoko Tajima 75mins 15
"The Fifth Mind" is a harrowing portrait of two siblings torn apart by a shared childhood experience. One sibling has completely blocked the abuse, incest and madness. The other has created 5 minds to deal with the pain. Drama, Japan

Esther. B. Robertson 60mins 15
Virtually unknown today, Danny was Andy Warhol's lover, and a promising young filmmaker. The discovery of 20 never-before-seen films William's made during his time at the Factory-- and whose many subjects include Andy Warhol, Edie Sedgwick, Paul Morrissey, Brigid Berlin, Billy Name and what may be the earliest known footage of the Velvet Underground -- reveals a luminous talent and a stark gap in the historical record. Documentary, USA

8:30

Black White & Gray

James Crump 73mins 18
A fascinating documentary following the complex relationship between photographer Robert Mapplethorpe and his lover and wealthy patron Sam Wagstaff. Wagstaff pulled Mapplethorpe from his suburban Queens existence, gave him a camera and brought him into this art world that seemed to be waiting for him, creating the man whose infamous images instilled emotions ranging from awe to anger. The film also explores the relationship both men had with musician/poet Patti Smith. Wagstaff's death from AIDS, in 1987, and later Mapplethorpe's death in 1989, marked the end of an era. Documentary, USA

9:45

Celluloid#1

Steve Staso 80mins 18
This film is a confetti of references to the genius of Warhol, Fassbinder, the era of "The Hustler" and the glory of black and white. "Celluloid#1" is ultimately about celluloid and how it captures us, as Cprice says, "it is us in our glamour, it is us in our disease". The film exposes the tawdry addiction to our "soft celebrity" culture, which is stuck like chewed gum to the souls of our shoes. Drama, USA

SAT 6 SEP - TABERNACLE

6pm

Portobello Film Festival 2008 remembers the 1958 Race Riots and how they led to Anti-Racism being on the establishment agenda.

Curated and presented by Colin Prescod and Menelik Shabazz, featuring a lively debate (8pm)

BFM International Film Festival is the largest black world cinema event in the UK. The 10th Anniversary festival will take place between 7th - 17th November 2008 at venues which include the BFI Southbank, the British Museum, Institute of Contemporary Arts and Stratford Circus. Between 35 - 60 films, from all genres including features, documentaries, shorts and animation films, will be screened.

Writer/Director/Producer Menelik is the founder of bfm magazine and International Film Festival. He has been working in the British film industry since he left the International Film School in 1975. He has produced work independently as well as in television producing programmes for and Channel Four.

Time & Judgement: 1958 Remembered

Step Forward Youth (Dir: Menelik Shabazz, 25 min)

It's 1976, first generation young people of West Indian descent give their views on growing up in England. Shot both in Ladbroke Grove and Brixton, featuring Drummie Zeb of Aswad.

From You Were Black You Were Out

(Director: Colin Prescod 45mins)
Made in the early '80s, this local history film accounts the experiences of the Black community of Ladbroke Grove. Interviews with key players describe the arrival of early settlers, the 'race riots' of 1958, the role of Claudia Jones and her West Indian Gazette in priming the Notting Hill Carnival. A study of racism in the words of those who faced and fought it, the film gives inspiring insight into a defining moment of North Kensington's history.

Blacks Britannica (Director David Koff, 1978) outraged the establishment on both sides of the Atlantic and is one of the most suppressed films ever made in this country. As soon as it was completed, it was put under legal injunction so that it could only be screened guerrilla-style in community and activist venues. It was chopped up, scrambled and re-edited with over 80 changes by the commissioning editors at WGBH, Boston, before they dared network it to an American audience. They then fought the filmmakers for three and a half years in the US courts. The film was attacked in Parliament and was the subject of embarrassed denials by the British Consulate in New York.

Urban Art Masterclass

28 August to 14 September
Westbourne Studios

Solo One has been one of the most prolific graffiti writers in recent times. His work is a comic book style reflection on society today and incorporates contemporary issues on a ever changing basis. Solo One continues to make art for the street and has exhibited in Azerbaijan, Cape Town, New York and Tokyo. He continues to keep a low profile in the mainstream street art scene and creates collectable one off pieces from his small studio in South London. For more info check: www.amilasart.com, www.myspace.com/soloone_vopstar, www.vopstars.com and www.ukhh.com for interview

Zeus – For the past 20 years, London artist Zeus has been drawing inspiration from urban culture to create dynamic, experimental compositions that have re-defined graffiti art.

Zeus has continually pushed the boundaries of graffiti artistry, taking the form out of its traditional setting and into new, exciting and more legitimate places.

Zeus has always striven to rid street art of its tarnished image – acquired through an historic association with crime and vandalism. He was even invited to teach Prince Charles how to spray paint as part of a Prince's Trust initiative.

Zeus has maintained momentum as an artist through his desire to recreate the essence of street art in original guises. At the present time he is channelling his talents into the creation of useable sculptures, from his renowned 'Fishtank' to 3D graffiti furniture. See www.zeus-art.com

Inkie – After getting busted in 1988 in the UK's largest ever graffiti shutdown – codename Operation Anderson – Inkie went on to come second in the World Street Art Championships of 1989. He's continued for the past two decades to push the art in his own inimitable style and ways. Alongside Banksy he organized the largest ever UK graffiti event, a 1.4 km painting around the Bristol docks entitled 'Walls On Fire'.

Inkie is currently working with Jade Jagger. See www.inkie.co.uk

Dotmaster has been spitting works, pranks and events out at the public under several names such as C6, the Media Whores, and more recently as The Dotmasters. The obsession with stencils started in 1997 with the "State of the nation" a street gallery in downtown Minneapolis. In recent times as The Dotmasters, half toned masterpieces are stencilled on the fronts of galleries worldwide, poking fun at the sensibilities of the art world and the notions of vandalism. His work is always produced with an irreverent disregard for medium and wish for mischievous confrontation. There is no right place for art, it often more valid in your street than it is in a white cube. There is NO subculture ONLY subversion. For more info check: www.c6.org

Andrew Logan, Jenny Runacre and Duggie Fields

2 September – 14 September
The Muse Gallery Portobello Road

Complimenting this year's Alternative Miss World night on 30 August, renowned artist Andrew Logan – whose work features in collections from Her Majesty The Queen to Brian Eno - shows photos from 35 years of Alternative Miss World.

Andrew, Jenny and Duggie are long time friends, and have been involved in Alternative Miss World since the beginning. Jenny's Sex Pistol article never appeared due to the Pistols disrespecting Warhol (repeatedly rhyming his name with a swearword).

Cult actress Jenny Runacre was commissioned by Andy Warhol to do a feature on the Sex Pistols for his Interview magazine. It was their last ever gig in UK, in Huddersfield on Christmas Day 1978. Here she displays photos of that historic night for the first time ever.

Duggie Fields is one of the foremost Post Modernist painters in UK. He displays his latest digital prints here.

Charlie Phillips – How Great Thou Art

6 September launch at Tabernacle
Viewing 7-14 September: Inn On The Green

Charlie Phillips has been photographing Caribbean life in Portobello Road since the early 60s. He grew up in the area and remembers Moseley's thugs terrorising the immigrant community.

As a preview for a forthcoming touring exhibition he displays photographs of Caribbean funerals in Kensal Green necropolis over the past 40 years.

The images reveal the evolution of a community that has contributed substantially to the culture of Portobello Road since the arrival of the Empire Windrush.

Charlie's pictures have been displayed at Tate Britain, The Museum Of London and in the popular book Notting Hill In The 60s.

A Fete Worse Than Death

A Fete Worse Than Death Returning from the pits of Punkvert's Labiatory for a one off special soirée at this year's Portobello Film Festival, the original "twistado-punkass-kabbaret for discerning dissenters, terrorists, cratch watchers and inbetweeny Manson Family wannabees" - Subterfuge, makes a rare appearance in the nation's Capital.

6pm

To celebrate the holy way of the Jester, Ex Gratia Recordings have a hat-trick release on the aforementioned evening of debauchery. A new single from both cabaret punk-funkers - Rude Mechanicals and flagship freaks - Anarchistwood. Ex Gratia turns this into a seedy threesome with the long awaited debut album from performance soloist - Handsom Pete.

At 6.30pm, a premier cut of Punkvert's new creative AV documentary - #402, will be screened. Filmed in collaboration with artists from the Treatment Rooms and Nick Reynolds (Alabama3), the piece follows the events of said individuals as they travelled to Huntsville, Texas for the State execution of Baroness von Reichardt's (Treatment Rooms) friend - John Joe 'Ash' Amador, in summer of 2007.

The last minute addition of Nick to the travel party transformed the outcome of this grizzly display of sanctioned homicide. By Nick's casting of a death mask of Ash, his family, friends and the audience can find some positive light in the darkness of capital punishment Vjing for the evening comes from the most (UN) paranoid Kodek (VJ) and Punkvert, whilst PRNWhore and the bastard son of dada and all things decedent, Mr. Johnny Southside spin the vinyl.

DARFUR NOW

(Ted Braun) 99mins 15
Darfur Now is a call to action for people everywhere to help end the crisis in Darfur. For the first time in history, the US Government has declared a genocide while it is ongoing. In this film, the struggles and achievements of six very different individuals bring to light the situation in Darfur and the need to get involved. From a UCLA graduate in Los Angeles, California, to a Darfuri woman who joins rebel forces, to the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court in The Hague, to a United Nations humanitarian on the ground in Sudan, to an internationally known actor and activist, and finally to a community leader in a West Darfur refugee camp, the film portrays the heroic efforts of six people responding to a humanitarian tragedy unfolding before our eyes.

Followed by Q&A from

A Brief History Of Notting Hill Carnival

Tom Vague examines the origins, definitions, influences, traditions, legends and myths of Notting Hill Carnival.

Marcus Garvey

In the early 30s, as Rastafarianism was founded in Jamaica, Marcus Garvey came to London after the collapse of his Black Starliner Afro-utopian plans; he was reputedly one of the first West Indian residents of Powis Square. Marcus Garvey died in west Kensington in 1940 and was buried at Kensal Green cemetery, for 24 years – then he was re-interred in Kingston as Jamaica's first national hero. After the riots, his widow Amy Ashwood Garvey founded the Association for the Advancement of Coloured People on Bassett Road, and worked with the Carnival founder Claudia Jones.

1958 Race Riots

The 1958 Notting Hill riots can now be seen in a positive light, dispelling the mother country myth and creating the reality of multicultural Britain. Afterwards Jamaicans, Trinidadians, small islanders, even Barbadians (who were traditionally police) and Africans united in their resolve to forge a new black British Afro-Caribbean identity. Ironically, the main inspiration of Notting Hill Carnival was not old English fairs or Caribbean carnivals, but the anti-black British riots. 1958 was a virtually positive rite of passage, and a 'sounding board for popular discontent' that brought racial prejudice out into the open, along with white working class exclusion from mainstream society.

The Road Made To Walk on Carnival Day

The 1958 origin of Notting Hill Carnival summed up by the 70s organiser Darcus Howe: "Once you live a huge moment of history, you know exactly how history is made. Once you live in a big moment, otherwise you think somebody orchestrated it or somebody started it. If you want to look for somebody who started Carnival you'll never find an individual – that's out of the question, there is no entrepreneur or impresario who called it into being. It looked like we needed it and the road was there and some guys had some instruments in a pub and that was it. I don't think it's a coincidence that we had it in Notting Hill. I think Notting Hill has always been, even before the Carnival started, explained to me as liberated territory, a place where you stood up for your rights and where Kelso Cochrane lost his life."

1959 West Indian Gazette Caribbean Carnival

The London Caribbean Carnival was officially founded in 1959 by Claudia Jones, a Trinidad-born US civil rights activist who edited the West Indian Gazette. The first 'indoors Carnival' (or West Indian Gazette Carnival) took place on January 30 1959 at St Pancras Town Hall, Euston. Cleo Laine topped the bill which included the Mighty Terror singing the calypso 'Carnival at St Pancras'. The nearest the indoors Carnival came to Notting Hill was the Town Hall on Kensington High Street in 1960. In April '59 there was a West Indian steel band on the first CND march to Aldermaston.

1959 Kelso Cochrane Funeral Procession

On May 17 1959 a West Indian man called Kelso Cochrane was stabbed to death by a gang of white men on Southam Street in Kensal. This was during the 'ugly election' campaign of the fascist leader Oswald Mosley who was standing as the Union Movement candidate for North Kensington, and holding street meetings around the area. As Mosley was blamed for bringing further disgrace on the area, on June 11 black and white people lined the route of Kelso Cochrane's funeral cortege, described as a proto-Carnival procession, along Ladbroke Grove to Kensal Green Cemetery. Mike Phillips called it 'the great event which ended the 50s and began the West Indian decade of Notting Hill.'

1963 Ladbroke Grove I Have A Dream March

On August 31 1963, Claudia Jones's diary featured a procession of her Committee of Afro-Asian Caribbean Organisations, in solidarity with the Washington Martin Luther King 'I have a dream' march, from Ladbroke Grove station to the US embassy in Grosvenor Square.

1964 A Hard Day's Night Parade

Back in North Kensington the community activist Rhayne Laslett joined forces with the steel band leader Selwyn Baptiste to teach children to play the pans at the Wornington Road adventure playground (now the Venture Centre) off Golborne Road. But, as far as any evidence goes, in the years of the media myth first Notting Hill Carnival, 1964 or '65, nothing happened. Apart from when Ringo Starr went 'parading' on All Saints Road and was joined by the other Beatles in Notting Dale in A Hard Day's Night.

1966 London Free School Michaelmas Fayre

As the London Free School group organised the first Carnival in 1966, in spite of pressure from the police and Council to drop Michael X from the group, he stayed and the Carnival happened in late September; around the time of Michaelmas (when, appropriately enough, rents were due to landlords). In Mike and Charlie Phillips' Notting Hill in the 60s, the Carnival king status of Michael de Freitas, aka Michael X and Michael Abdul Malik, was thus verified: "He was a visionary right, all this Carnival down in the Grove is down to Michael you know... he's talking to this woman who's running a neighbourhood thing down on Tavistock Road, Rhayne Laslett, and they twos up, and that kick off from there." However, VS Naipaul concluded: 'to the Trinidad crowds Malik had become a 'character', a Carnival figure, to be beaten through the streets on Good Friday.'

1967 IT Parade and Summer of Love Fair

In 1967 John 'Happy' Hopkins presented 'the Death and Resurrection of IT' parade on Portobello. This hippy street theatre, as relic of tree worship in mod Europe, consisted of a coffin carried on a 'rebirth journey' from the Cenotaph in Whitehall back to Notting Hill Gate on the Circle Line, and a procession through the market with bongo drum accompaniment. During the summer of love, the second Rhayne Laslett 'Notting Hill Festival' was incorporated into the Notting Hill Summer Project community workshop – a more serious version of the London Free School.

1969 King Mob Situationist Carnival

The year of 'Getting It Straight In Notting Hill Gate' by Quintessence, the Situationist King Mob group presented a 'Miss Notting Hill '69' Carnival float, featuring a girl with a giant syringe attached to her arm. This was 'a comment on the fact that there was junk and junk, the hard stuff, or the heroin of mindless routine and consumption.'

1970 Notting Hill People's Free Carnival

The 1970 Notting Hill 'People's Carnival' consisted of a procession round the area, starting and finishing in Powis Square, led by Ginger Johnson's African drummers and a witchdoctor. Proceedings ended with a rock festival in the square gardens featuring the American band Socca/Sacatash, Mataya, Stackhouse, James Metzner 'and various local musicians.'

1972/3 Calypso Carnival

From the early to mid 70s, under the administration of the Trinidadian Leslie Palmer, the Notting Hill hippy 'fayre' was transformed into 'an urban festival of black music', based on the Trinidad Carnival model. From the first Carnival HQ on Acklam Road, Leslie Palmer established the blueprint of the modern event; getting sponsorship, recruiting steel bands and sound-systems, introducing generators and extending the route. The attendance went up accordingly from 3,000 at the beginning of the 70s to 50,000 in 1973.

1974/5 Reggae Carnival

By the mid 70s, Jamaican reggae was challenging Trinidadian calypso's dominance of Notting Hill Carnival. At the 1974 flares and platforms Carnival, Palmer introduced reggae sound-systems and the Cimarons played, thus attracting black youth from all over London, rather than just locals. In 1975 the turnout reached 100,000, and the Carnival's press profile changed from harmless hippy fair to public order problem.

1976 Carnival Police Clash

The reggae promoter Wilf Walker remembers Acklam Road in '76 as a spiritual awakening of black Britain: "It was incredible in those days to be in a sea of black faces. As a black person, that kind of solidarity we don't experience anymore... We described it as a demo of solidarity and peace within the black community. I can't imagine what it would have been like for white people... '76 showed the strength of feeling, reggae was raging in those days, young blacks weren't into being happy natives, putting on a silly costume and dancing in the street, in the same street where we were getting done for sus every day."

1977 Two Sevens Clash Punky Reggae Party

In 1977, after the Clash 'White Riot' tour took the '76 riot backdrop around the country, causing a series of mini-riots, there was another full-scale Carnival riot. This one was attended by Bob Marley, who was on Acklam Road at Lloyd Coxson's sound-system; and reporters from International Times who recorded the end of peace and love in their 'Fear and Loathing in W11' special: 'It was the revolution. Unplanned, uncaring and without generals, the black kids were having a revolution. No surprise. In the towerblock prison camps of the working-class, white punks are Xeroxing nihilism with their 'No Future' muzak turned up full blast. In the ghetto, when the Carnival slips the leash, black punks tear up the present.'

1978 Forces of Victory Carnival

The reggae poet Linton Kwesi Johnson made the early Carnival route expansion proposal: 'We're di forces of vic't'ry, an' 'wi' comin' rite through, we're di forces of vic't'ry, now wat yu gonna do, wi mek a likkle date fi 1978 an' 'wi fite an' 'wi fite, an' defeat di State, den all wi jus' forwud up to Not'n' Hill Gate.' At that year's Carnival Darcus Howe's Brixton mas band's militant theme was 'Forces of Victory'.

1979 Post-Punky Reggae Party

In 1979 Wilf Walker presented the first Notting Hill Carnival stage on Portobello Green beside the Westway, to include alienated black youth and punks in the event.

Aswad topped the post-punky reggae bill also featuring Barry Ford from Merger, Sons of Jah, King Sounds and the Israelites, Brimstone, Exodus, Nik Turner from Hawkwind, Carol Grimes, the Passions and Vincent Units. In an attempt to keep the riot zone under control, proceedings were wound up at 8 and Portobello was fenced off – but to no avail. In spite of or because of the new riot control measures, enforced by 10,000 policemen, at the Monday closedown there were further disturbances.

1981/2 Punky Reggae Hip-hop Party

In 1981 Eddy Grant was recorded 'Live at Notting Hill Carnival' on Portobello Green. The same year, an Italian fascist plot to attack the Carnival with a bomb and/or snipers was reputedly foiled by an anti-fascist mole. So the National Front skinheads had to settle for a rally in Fulham, instead of a race war, that bank holiday weekend. The first rapper is said to have appeared at the '81 Carnival under the Westway, on the west side of Ladbroke Grove on the site of the Ion bar, at the time of the Clash punky hip-hop party with Futura2000. 'The Message' by Grandmaster Flash arrived via Norman Jay's Goodtimes sound-system on Cambridge Gardens. In 1982 Musical Youth appeared at the time of 'Pass the Dutchie' on Portobello Green, with the Cimarons and Rip Rig & Panic, while prag VEC and the Raincoats took to the new second stage in Meanwhile Gardens, alongside the canal.

1983 Aswad Live And Direct Carnival

1983 turned out to be the most commercial yet, with body-popping, baseball caps, tracksuits and trainers succeeding skanking, dreadlocks and combat gear, and 'police this year picked for their wimpish manner, with beads whenever possible.' Nevertheless, when Emotion sound-system outside the Apollo at the All Saints/Lancaster junction shut down on the Monday night, there was another riot. As the Carnival expanded again in the mid 80s to 4 stages; at Portobello Green, Meanwhile Gardens, Powis Square ('Paris Square' in NME), and the West London (Linford Christie) Stadium on Wormwood Scrubs; outbreaks of rioting at closedown continued to be a regular feature.

1989 Last Carnival Riot

At the '89 Carnival Arts Committee general meeting, an even more moderate Carnival committee was formed and the local barrister Claire Holder was elected chair. In the last Mangrove trial Frank Cridlow was cleared of trumped up drugs charges, then the police raided the Mangrove some more, causing further clashes outside, and 1989 saw the last Carnival riot on All Saints Road. As the area was lit by crane-mounted floodlights and helicopter searchlights, 400 arrests were made in the clean up operation. In the Private Eye report: 'As helicopters roared overhead the 'boys in blue' danced with each other in the streets until the early hours, watched only by a 'token force' of Rastafarians.'

1994 Jungle W11 Carnival

The 1994 jungle W11 Carnival, at which All Saints made their debut in Powis Square, had the first million plus attendance according to the Standard; prompting proposals for a new 4th stage in Hyde Park, to avoid a Hillsborough style crush and accommodate the likes of Prince and Michael Jackson. All Saints Road was twinned with Vienda Street in Soweto at the Nelson Mandela election victory street party.

1995 Hugh Grant Mas and Mayhem

In the run-up to the 1995 Carnival, Mas Café at 6-8 All Saints (formerly the Mangrove, now Ruby & Sequoia) was the scene of a scuffle involving Hugh Grant, in which the actor was ridiculed over the Divine Brown affair and generally roughed up. An onlooker said: "It all happened so fast. Hugh went pale and was frightened. He was OK but he had a bit of blood on him. I don't think he'll be back." For me, the highlight of the first Lilt Carnival in '95 was seeing Nick Cave refused access to Basing Street by a policeman.

1996 Lilt Carnival

The Carnival peaked on the 30th anniversary of the London Free School Fair, when the second Lilt Carnival of 1996 overtook Rio as the biggest gig in the world, according to the Standard. The 2 million plus attendance included Ice-T, Jamiroquai, the Jungle Brothers, Chaka Demus and Pliers, Montell Jordan and Nu Colours, appearing on the two main stages, Radio 1 at Portobello Green and Kiss in Kensal, while Powis Square gardens became the South Africa Square world music stage.

1997 William Hague Baseball Cap Carnival

1997 was the notorious William Hague baseball cap Carnival, which the Tory leader ordained "the biggest cultural event of the nation." Aside from the Notting Hill Tory appearance, entertainment was provided by Soul II Soul and Wyclef of the Fugees in Kensal, and Jay-Z (at the time of 'Hard Knock Life: Ghetto Anthem') on Portobello Green, accompanied by a crowd crush and a shooting.

1998 Who Let The Dogs Out Carnival

In 1998, the year of 'Who Let the Dogs Out' (by Jonathan King), the Carnival was sponsored by Virgin Atlantic after the original backers Nescafe pulled out over hot coffee spilling fares. Then Kiss followed suit and Radio 1 took over the Kensal stage.

1999 Destiny's Child Carnival

The last Carnival of the 20th century featured Destiny's Child and Damon Albarn of Blur/Gorillaz in Kensal, but not the Radio 1 DJ Tim Westwood after he was shot at during the Carnival run-up in an unrelated incident.

Y2K UK Garage Summer Of Love/Radio 1 Gangsta Rap Murder Mayhem

The Y2K UK garage 'summer of love' Carnival, featuring De La Soul, Shola Ama, Lonyo, the Architects and MC Cole, turned into more murder mayhem media, largely blamed on the Radio 1 gangsta rap stage at Kensal. Into the 21st century proceedings on the original Portobello Green stage were scaled down, back to local events like the Portobello Film Festival, Jazz on the Green and Moroccan festivals.

2006 Lily Allen LDN Carnival

'Sun is in the sky, oh why, oh why would I want to be anywhere else?' Lily Allen's 'LDN' video, filmed in the run up to the 2006 Carnival, captured the Heaven W11/Notting Hell contrast featuring Rough Trade on Talbot Road as 'Tough Grade', the Romeo and Juliet/domestic dispute scene on Tavistock Road, and the final scenes under Trellick Tower in Kensal. During the Carnival, Lily (the daughter of Keith Allen of Rougher local previous) appeared at the Yo Yo Carnival club night at the Notting Hill Arts Club at Notting Hill Gate, where she made her debut earlier in the year.

2008 Ladbroke Grove Mini-Carnival Konnie Huq Olympic Torch Grab Tibet Protest

Earlier this year, the Olympic torch was grabbed from the former Blue Peter presenter Konnie Huq by a Tibet protester at the snowbound mini-Carnival on Ladbroke Grove by the Elgin.
